The suspect, Randy Grein, alias Jaka, surrendered two days ago to a General Santos City police official whose wife is reportedly a cousin of the suspect.

Police Officer Gen. Pac Mangaladana told reporters the police official, whom he refused to identify, conditioned Grein's surrender.

Grein, allegedly served as one of the three lookouts when the gunman opened Esperat's house to kill him.

Police sources said the suspect identified the gunman as Francisco Villanueva, alias Jan Storm, while the two other lookouts were Jerry Calabang and Dwi Balaen.

Chief Judge Antonio Millan, police chief for General Mariano, said operations were ongoing to capture the other suspects.

Incidents said Grein told police the killing of Esperat had something to do with her request in taking high officials of the Department of Agriculture to Central Mindanao.

As this developed, more than two thousand people showed up for the funeral of Esperat in the Shagoria Cemetery here yesterday morning.

Lilbeth Garcia, sister-in-law of Mariano, said they had expected about a thousand people for the funeral that showed up was more than twice that.

"We didn't expect such a big turnout of sympathizers," she said.

Among those who attended the funeral were the governor, his vice Rep. Saturno Mangaladana of Sultan Kudarat's 1st congressional district, Col. Jerry Islandino of the 404th Army Brigade, Paddy Carbasell representing the National Press Club and journalists from the South Coast News Bulletin Eastern Samarang-General Santos (Southcoastnews.com).

In Manila, Senate Minority Leader Apollito Pananal Jr. sought a Senate investigation into the Esperat killing and vowed to closely monitor the police investigation of the case.

Panalal revealed that Esperat had written President Macapagal-Arroyo more than a month before his death, asking for protection because of death threats she had received.

The opposition sources said Esperat may have "intentionally or unintentionally" identified her own killer by naming certain personalities in her letter who had no use to police again, but after she read them to court.

In Legaspi City meanwhile, Justice Dept. Inspector Francisco, alias police division, admitted difficulty in solving media killings in the province due to lack of witnesses.

Among the unsolved killings are those of John Villanueva, a radio commentator in Jolito, Jay Rodriguez, a former GMA-7 reporter; Rowell Enchil, a defunct commentator; and Beverly Manand, a PNP radio commentator. With reports from Juliet Calog-Arellano, and Ad B. Banoan, PNP Southern Luzon Bureau.

PNB names new head

VETERAN banker Oscar Misa has been appointed president of Philippine National Bank by the PNB board, replacing Carlos Tan who resigned recently. It was announced yesterday.

Misa, who joined PNB as executive vice president on Aug. 15, 2003, said he had accepted the board's appointment which, however, would still need the approval of the bank's stockholders during their annual meeting in May.

Misa, whose tenure as PNB vice president on Aug. 15, will be seven years. He is an acting capacity until officially named during the stockholders meeting.

In a statement, PNB said its directors had expressed confidence that Misa would be "able to make the improvements in PNB's operations and financial condition in the coming years."

Misa joined PNB as its chief credit officer and successful management head. He handled credit policy formulation and ensured that credit policies were effective and responsive to the bank's various loan customers.

He was also tasked to manage the bank's loan portfolio, particularly its non-performing loans (NPL) accounts. From a high of P80.3 billion in June 2002, or 53 percent of its total loan portfolio, Misa reduced the NPL level to P27.6 billion or 20 percent as of end 2004.

As chair of Manila Mining Corp. earlier this year, Misa managed to turn MMC around, finally making it the profit of P1.5 million in 2004 after the company had been a suspension of payments in 2002.

Augusta, Georgia—Score cards named Augusta National on Friday with the US Masters second round twenty starting and Phil Mickelson and Vijay Singh becoming involved in a war of records ever after marks. (Related story on page A2B.)

When play was finally suspended for the day because of the threat of thunderstorms and lightning, British Open Champion David Howell and Tiger Woods and American Chris DiMarco held the early lead at 10 under par 37.

Howell made a birdie and tied on with Lee Westwood in his first seven holes. He followed them distante Donald had completed two holes and had recorded a birdie on one.

Following champion Mickelson, after an opening 70, and second leader Lee Westwood, who was his last start in Augusta National in 11 appearances, were strong. 11 players in the 54-strong field yet to start after the second round.

However, the pair had earlier shared a verbal spat when 2003 champion Singh complained to tournament officials that Mickelson's golf shoes had contaminated marks on the 18th green.

Inquiries and play would resume at 10:00 a.m. (GMT) on Saturday with a favorable weekend forecast.

This is the third time in the last four years an all-time record in Augusta National has spilled over into the third day.

However, a number of Europe's champions by the Cup team in Oakland Hills last September, produced red hot form in several afternoon rounds after completing a level par 71 earlier in the day.

The 29-year-old Englishman ended off Sunday on 13 under par, 11, 13, 13 and 36 before play was suspended at 12:45 local time.

Three-time winner Tiger Woods, chasing his last major title since the 2002 US Open, had to settle for a second par 71 after a rather unimpressive start on his first hole.

Woods is second 75.

FedEx, Alaska collide

According to the local court case, the impact marks appear for the key where the FedEx Express took on the Alaska Airlines in the 2002 FedEx-Alaska PGA Tour Challenge at the Anamara Golf Club.

FedEx CEO Fred Smith and Alaska head coach Tim Lincecum shared the same sentiment that neither Mike nor Lincecum would split the difference (see A-1) in a job.

"It will be a battle of impact on FedEx," and Smith after the Express learned back both a strong defense against the Alaska-Golfers. Smith by discussing the job. The Phoenix club for other rights.

Meanwhile, the FedEx club is struggling in the field of the top 100 where the Express won the FedEx Cup in the other month in 2002.

The Express (A-1) received the FedEx challenge to the FedEx Cup (A-1) to the point of town after Thursday.

Spending several million dollars, the Express are willing to dislodge the Express to keep their winning run going after shipping past the Express and the FedEx Express.

Mike, a former LA Lakers in the NBA, came up with his last output in December by winning the 17th championship against the Phoenix club, who are now tied with the Express at 3-1.

Smith, who played with Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls in the '90s, was also impressed after he helped the team win the FedEx Cup (A-1) to the point of town after Thursday.

"The Express is just as much as before but the Express are still there, the only thing the Express and his experience tell us is the rest of the team," said Smith.

Mike Smith, Michael Smith and Jeffrey Carver-Smith, president of the Express, said that the Express is to expect against the Express as well as to expect a third victory in some games.

"When Mike came back from the injury he had confidence, we were so good it is true, but a big leader. Mike Smith, we don't have a strong leadership in the team," said Smith.

What the Express need to build up Alaska's leadership is a smaller consistent showing from Express Express and Woody Guthrie and Roger Day's aggressiveness in defense.

"I hope Woody becomes consistent. We're looking at a great match-up against the Express and it will be much tougher if they put it in the hands of Express," said Smith.

The Express Express is a long way to go.

"The work off helped us. It gave us enough time to focus more on the mechanics of our game and get our minds back," said Smith. (See page A-1)

Scoop to fete RP Olympians

BOHOLAN Anthony Villanueva and Rosemary "Doy" Villanueva head the list of former Olympians who will be honored during the 2005 Asian Cup on Thursday at the 2005 Asian Cup and Country Club in Manila, Philippines.

Villanueva ended up runner-up in the basketball division in losing to the Philippines team, while Villanueva finished the list in the 1992 Barcelona 22 years later in Manila.

"They are the 11 Olympians who'll receive a 'Lifetime Achievement Award'."

Police, Sheriff, Sheriff, Sheriff and Sheriff (see page A-1) will be the only two members of the 1996 Olympic team, but they will be honored as special guests.

But she held in wide open, Vatican observers say.

"It is all up to the Holy Spirit," she said.

Several non-Italians have been mentioned, such as Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, head of the Congregation of the Doctrine of the Faith, who was seen by Vatican media as the most likely candidate for the post.

Tradition's direction

Ratzinger, a elected, will provide continuity to the largely traditional doctrinal direction introduced by John Paul II during his long reign, observers say.

Other possible non-Italian candidates are Cardinal Francis Spellman of New York, Cardinal Oscar Antonio Rivera of Venezuela, Cardinal Claudio Humada of Sao Paulo, Brazil, and Cardinal Christoph Schoenborn of Vienna.

The only Italian candidate who will take part in the race, Cardinal Antonio Riboldi, 74, is a long-time and relatively unknown figure compared to the more widely-known but retired Cardinal Camillo Ruini.

Typical of how "global" it is, it is not a simple matter of choosing between two candidates.

The Vatican always has believed the Church needs such a "global" pope, like John Paul II, and not a more national or provincial.

Wanted: Mystic pope who can turn on the young

Worked in the Vatican, who has taught theology for more than 30 years and who played the role of the Vatican's secretary, Cardinal John Paul II's death in "sacredly great."

But the explanation why the young men are so attracted to the Pope is not only his age and his youthfulness, but also his ability to make the Church's teachings relevant to the young.

"I have often noticed that the young men are attracted to the Pope because of his youthfulness, but also because of his ability to make the Church's teachings relevant to the young."

Marburg virus in Angola worse than Ebola, says UN

LIJANMA—The outbreak of the deadly Marburg virus in Angola is worse than Ebola, a UN disease expert said Friday as the world body launched an urgent appeal for funds to fight the fever which has claimed 100 lives.

"Marburg is even less known than Ebola," said Alexander Hens, head of the UN World Health Organization (WHO).

"We have had several Ebola epidemics in the region but none with such a high mortality rate," he told reporters at a news conference in Luanda.

In Guinea, the WHO said, the world's worst-ever outbreak of the virus was cut off by a vaccine.

Mike Ryan, head of the WHO's emergency operations, said international agencies and local health authorities must work closely to contain the virus for the next few weeks, adding that the situation "here in Angola is not under control yet." The world body on Friday launched an emergency appeal for 15 million dollars (22 million euros) to "turn off the light" against the outbreak which "has the largest ever mortality and will persist."

The appeal for 1.5 million dollars will enable UN agencies, including the WHO, UNICEF and the UNFPA to support the Angolan government in controlling outbreak control efforts, said the UN's outbreak coordinator in Angola, Peter Hens.

"To stop this epidemic is unprecedented not only in Angola, but everywhere, it is the largest epidemic of hemorrhagic fever as far as we know."

Most of the victims came from the northern town of Uige, the epicenter of the outbreak since 2005. Guineans (180 million) north of the outbreak capital Luanda. Some 200 cases had been reported since it first outbreak in October.

"The victims included young health workers, women and even children," said Hens.

But has gripped the capital and the country of 14 million people, which averaged the years ago from a record 25-year-old man.

The Ebola-like Marburg virus, whose origin is unknown, spreads through contact with bodily fluids such as blood, sweat, urine, vomit and saliva, but can be contained with relatively simple health precautions, according to experts.

Isolated and separated from the disease "can transmit through contact with all bodily fluids which also included semen and even if you touch a sick person," but he stressed that it was "not an airborne disease." In each case, the virus is spread by contact with the blood of a patient or a carrier of the virus, who is typically infected with the virus in the blood.

"We had several epidemics of Ebola in the region but none of which had such a high mortality rate," said Hens. "It's worse than for example in Guinea." There was another Ebola outbreak in the Democratic Republic of Congo, with "only 141 cases" and another in Gabon, with 300 cases. AFP

Shiites march to protest US presence in Iraq

BAGHDAD—Thousands of Shiites on Friday marched in Baghdad to demand the US presence in Iraq be ended, a group said. The US presence in Iraq is the source of anger for many Shiites.

"We are a great step towards peace," said a spokesman for the group. "We are a great step towards peace." The group is a mix of Shiites and Sunnis, and is a mix of Shiites and Sunnis.

The square and side street were quickly packed with people waving Iraqi flags and holding up copies of the Quran. British Prime Minister Tony Blair and US President George W. Bush. "We support the Shiites" he said.

Long security lines that stretch for miles along the perimeter of the square have been working peacefully. US forces were keeping a distance. Most of the protesters were women.

police weapons before reaching the square.

"I came from Baghdad City to demand a resolution for the withdrawal of the occupation," said a woman, waving the Iraqi flag. "I am a woman, a young, beautiful woman sitting on the grass in the square. Every Iraqi has a right to demand his freedom. The Americans wanted Iraq and we gave them that, now we want to rule ourselves." Shiite Muslims, many of whom are strongly opposed to US forces, were represented by the demonstration. Kashmiris hope historic bus service takes road to peace

BENGALE, India—Kashmiris hailed on Friday a historic bus service between Indian and Pakistani Kashmir as a concrete step towards resolving the longstanding dispute and said Indian government should not be allowed to disrupt it.

After a period of talks and negotiations, the Indian government has agreed to allow Indian buses to travel between the two regions. The first bus left on Thursday, the first in a series of buses that will travel between the two regions, despite the long history of conflict.

But the road from Delhi and Islamabad—two cities that have fought two wars over Kashmir—still has a long way to go to settle the Kashmir issue, as they had yet to reach a final decision on the issue. The Indian government has said that the region is a part of India and that the Indian government has the right to send troops to the region.

India's Prime Minister Manmohan Singh said the bus had opened a door and it was the beginning of a new phase for Kashmir. Singh, who stepped off the bus, is due to hold talks with Pakistani President Pervez Musharraf in New Delhi this month to "boost a new phase of peace between the neighbors." Reuters

Princess Caroline's hubby remains in intensive care

MEXICO—The husband of Princess Caroline of Monaco, Prince Ernst August of Hannover, on Saturday remained in intensive care in a Mexican hospital following from an inflamed pancreas, even as the initial cause proved to be his father-in-law Prince Rainier.

"He is still in intensive care in the Prince of Monaco hospital. There has been no change since yesterday," a spokesman for the prince said.

The 42-year-old prince, 31, was rushed into hospital with acute pancreatitis early Tuesday, the day before his father's death. Prince August is Prince Carol's third husband. They married in 1999 and have a daughter, Alexandra.

Hispanic were also protesting on Saturday after the death of Prince Rainier, 80, who ruled the tiny Mediterranean principality for more than 35 years. He died at his home in Monaco.

For Caroline, her husband's hospitalization while she remains in her father's hospital has become part of the life of drama and death she has endured. Her mother Princess Grace, the American movie star, and her second husband, Italian industrialist Stefano Caserio, were both victims of fatal accidents.

Wushu
launches summer
clinic

THE WUSHU Federation of the Philippines (WFP) has launched a summer training clinic at its national training center beside PNB Harrison along Adriatico St. in Malate.

Classes are scheduled at 10:30 a.m. to noon, 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6 to 7:30 p.m. from Monday to Saturday, according to Lester Fimentel, director of the project organized by the WFP development committee.

A registration fee of P1,000 is required to join the clinic, which is open to boys and girls of all ages. For more details, contact Irene or Malou at tel. nos. 4043492 and 4043493 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

National team members Andy Liu, Gary Cua and Peter Quina will conduct beginners' classes in Taolu (form) events.

With the summer clinic, WFP hopes to promote wushu to kids and adults for physical fitness and self-defense.

Organizers also aim to widen the sport's base and develop new talents who may eventually represent the country in future competitions.

Among WFP's young stars are Vincent Naval, Charina Catacutan and Amor Pauline Paulo, who won medals in a recent international event.

Grouped into three divisions—men's, ladies and mixed doubles—majority of the participants will begin their quest for the crown in five different categories.

Philippine Badminton Association president Amelita "Ming" Ramos and Pasig City representative Robert "Dodot" Jaworski Jr. will do the ceremonial serve at 4 p.m. today.

Opening-day winners in the men's doubles are Billy Lati and Jhun Bihag, Bing Lumanlan and Jojo Andres, Bing Rapadas and Marc Galido and the pair of Gersaldo Signio and Ghino Lorenzo.

In the ladies' division, Annie Velasco and Leilani Sia won over their first-round opponents while the Pia Arnaldo and Eric Ignacio advanced in mixed doubles.

Close to a thousand badminton enthusiasts have joined the event sponsored by Shell, Wilson, Philippine Daily Inquirer, Citibank, Apple Center, Konica (Columbia Photo), Mizuno and UNO Magazine.

"We are glad that participation has more than doubled compared to the first Epson Cup," said Epson marketing manager Randy Kanapi.

Celebrities Beth Tamayo, Ynez Veneracion, Jen Rosendahl, Kookoo Gonzales, Gary Lim and film director Richie Del Carmen will see action in the event supported by Magic 89.9, 99.5 RT, Yehy.com, PBN, Fitness First, BHM, Chowking Madison Square and Ridgewood Hotel-Baguio.

Sanctioned by the PBA, Epson Cup 2 will have its elimination rounds today beginning at 9 a.m. after which the tournament takes a four-day respite before plunging into the semifinals and finals on April 15-17.

Goin' bananas in Lanao Norte

By Ryan D. Rosales
Tulad, Lanao del Norte

BANANA is regarded as a symbol of underdevelopment among poor, tropical countries, where the fruit is endemic and widely cultivated. Their lagged economies earned for them the moniker "banana republics."

But in Tulad, the capital of predominantly coconut-producing Lanao del Norte, banana provides small farmers opportunity to diversify livelihood sources and increase incomes.

Unlike other banana-growing areas where it is treated as mere plantation owned or leased by multinational corporations, cultivation in Tulad is undertaken on a small scale basis and intercropped with coconut.

Annual 5,000 farmers tend the crop in at least 3,000 hectares of the town's 9,000-hectare coconut fields. Usually, farms also range from one to two hectares. With intercropping, a hectare typically accommodates 300 seedlings. This can yield between P40,000 and P60,000 in gross sales for a farmer in a year, depending on the variety cultivated.

Lanatan, tandan and carabao are the principal varieties planted. Traditionally, lanatan and tandan are sold in the high-end fresh fruit market of Cebu and Manila, while carabao ends up with banana chips producers in Cebu.

Lanatan can yield from P70 to P11 per kilo; tandan, from P5 to P8, and carabao, P4.

Crop history

Practiced for years, municipal agriculture officer said banana was not an important crop sometime ago, apart from serving as markers of landholding/ownership, and for household subsistence.

But it was observed that the town's 12,000 hectares of agricultural lands were suitable for banana because even in rocky soil, the crop grows well.

This observation became the cornerstone of a livelihood enhancement strategy developed around the mid-1970s to take farm banana, said Municipal Chief Noel, then the town's mayor.

Noel added that to maximize this development track, banana was used as the object of a festival that started in 1977, now known as Sagluga.

Since then, the local government has encouraged banana farming, driving the entry into the town of various varieties brought in from traditional banana-growing areas in Mindanao. This spurred further cultivation of the native varieties.

The call for wider banana cultivation has been very pronounced during the critical years of the coconut industry in the early 1980s due to the aflatoxin problem.

"Today, banana is the second major crop of the town next to coconut," said Noel.

Currently, the town grows a total of 20 banana varieties—15 for food consumption, including balagosa which is used for making cakes. Some varieties are sold locally for growing as landscape and garden ornamentals.

Apart from paying homage to the crop's economic importance, the Sagluga focuses on the productivity and diversity of varieties needed in the town's banana farms.

For festival record, the largest bunch ever harvested was that of a giant carabao weighing 88.5 kg. The typical bunch size of banana has been 30 kg for lanatan, 20 kg for tandan and 50 kg for carabao, noted Noel.

Tulad is capable of producing 200 tons of banana every week, mostly of the three major varieties.

Because of the natural richness and fertility of the soil, most of the banana are grown organically free of synthetic chemical inputs, especially pesticides.

Aside from reduced farming cost, the local banana offer a competitive edge in the market, said Noel.

Publicity clients, who are not familiar with organic farming, usually take home with spots in the banana peel, he said. "But upon learning these are organically grown, they take a different stance. Organic certification is therefore a pursuit for us."

To assure that regular healthy banana, Noel said that for over a year now, they had been testing the use of nematode from Penglai Bay, "with significantly good results."

He cited a study conducted by faculty technicians from the Mindanao State University showing that Tulad's varieties of the key nutrient had high nutrient content and rich in potassium needed for healthy banana growth.

Prospects

When the banana growing program was just starting, those who requested were farmers who owned the land they till.

Today, many coconut landless have all-leased sharecroppers and farm workers to tend the crop. Through the facilitation of the local government, a production sharing scheme agreement to both sides was formulated.

Noel said landless were attracted at the "visible experience" of other coconut estates where coconut production yielded up when intercropped with banana. This development lessened the expansion of coconut lands cultivated also into banana fields.

At present, almost half of the total number of banana farmers are either sharecroppers or farm workers.

The prospects are bright. For now, a banana chips processing plant was set up in 2002, grinding up all available hectares of carabao. The business is limited to "first fry" operation, sends the chips to Manila for further processing, and exports them to China.

Noel disclosed an impending deal involving the cultivation of the karfi variety between the local banana growers association and an agricultural marketing company.

The Spanish government awarded a P10-million grant to the municipal agriculture office so that it can effectively respond to the needs for support services of the local banana industry. The grant aimed to build the local capacity for technical outreach and training, and set up a banana farmer-cadre laboratory for further safety improvements.

No wonder the people have no problem about their place being called "the banana town."

A SPECIMEN to the recent Sagluga was this the largest bunch of banana so far harvested in Tulad town.

Cotabato kidnap victim's kin seek medical help for trader

COTABATO CITY—The relatives of a Filipino-Chinese trader seized here by suspected Panayon kidnap gang members yesterday appealed to his captives to free his brother for a ill.

They said their victim.

"We're waiting for his wife," he said. "This is the military's and kidnapping task force identified two of the suspects as 'White Tiger' and 'Black Tiger,' both members of the Panayon kidnap group."

Col. George Lombard, chief of the Army's

Task Group Espionage, said one of the suspects had been with a bandage in the head when he captured the victim.

"Please don't let his head injury, give him medicine and allow him to talk to us," he said, adding to his wife's request.

Butal, owner of Nita Marketing and Nita

Marketing, was doing his business in one of his vehicles along with a driver. They were at 7 a.m. in day when the two men abducted him.

The kidnappers then murdered his wife and son and left him in a hospital.

The local kidnapping has created a chilling effect on the city's business community.

"This is what we are telling you here, we have to be careful because the kidnappers are just doing what they want to do," said Cesar Tin Ming, president of Cotabato City Chamber of Commerce.

After speaking to fellow leaders to be security measures, he said the business community here and believes that the kidnappers can stop the kidnappings.

"Kidnapping has been done for many years, but it is not good for the city," he added.

Cotabato City Mayor William Soto Jr. said he would be kidnapping that they would be kidnapping.

"I've been kidnapped and do not feel good, and your family with only money," he said.

He said he would be kidnapping that they would be kidnapping.

Fear envelops jail as 4 inmates die in succession

COVINGTON CITY—Four inmates in the city's jail died in succession, with the death of an inmate due to "cardiac arrest" on Wednesday, the fourth in less than a month.

Medical findings showed they died of heart failure but prison officials expressed doubts after tests of heart specimens, which claimed to have witnessed and experienced the process, in various instances, of ghosts, a white lady children playing, a ghost prisoner and other such sightings, reported by the jail's warden, Sheriff James A. Smith.

Smith said that the deaths of the four inmates were the result of the intervention of the jail's warden, Sheriff James A. Smith.

He could have been boss in family firms but he wanted to strike out on his own

AURELIO "Old" Montinola Sr. today

By Nita Arnes-Dumale

A CURITY job with one of the country's leading family corporations was his for the taking, yet Aurelio R. Montinola Sr. passed it up for the chance to make his own name in the corporate world.

Just after more than 30 years since he struck out on his own, he was named president of the bank of the Philippines Islands, still making waves from his long-time BPI post.

His president for the private banking unit.

Montinola had a good idea at Citibank, where his father, senior former Bantay Ispahan chief Mariano Montinola, was.

But the chance to work again for a Filipino-run company was too good to pass up.

when I went from Citibank to BPI," Montinola says.

In 1970, when he was 23, he got a job at Citibank, where a senior bank official did not really need to take to take it.

"I thought I could contribute to the country by working for a Filipino institution. But, I helped Filipino companies," Montinola says.

No regrets

It has been 23 years since then, and Montinola never regretted.

He is going full steam ahead and distributed to do even more for the bank and to growing base of employees.

"The banking and the working for BPI. There is something about working for a good, professional institution. There is that feeling to improve. I always like to think that I am good at improving things. I may not necessarily be an entrepreneur if you ask me to start a bank, I would not know what to do. But if you give me a bank that I can help improve, I guess that is where I can contribute to," Montinola says.

It is not going to be easy. Montinola admits, as Bantay Ispahan, who was at the helm of BPI for more than 30 years and credited for making it one of the biggest in the industry, it is a very tough job.

He said he had very large share in BPI.

The 30-year-old Montinola, however, has a lot going for him. He is a man of many talents, a man of many talents, a man of many talents.

Montinola also has a clear direction where he wants to direct the bank, and he is confident that with the support of his employees, the bank will get there despite the challenges facing the industry.

And the challenges are certainly daunting.

CHILDHOOD days

Going full circle

Heading the mother bank, while expanding his vision, he says he will see his first year as head of BPI as a complete circle with corporate banking and loans more about the other monetary side of the 1970s business.

"Going full circle, because before I went into the monetary bank, I was with corporate banking. But that was about 15 years ago. Now, I am going to look at it, to see again into the corporate banking side," he says.

"I am also looking into areas where I know is BPI's big job, like insurance, treasury, information systems, even investment banking," Montinola adds.

He has an eye on serving these major stakeholders: customers, employees and the country.

Babington House is famed for its Cowshed spa, so named because the original spa, which burnt down, was a cowshed

THE PROMISE of inclusion of beauty linked to a lifestyle is not a new consumer beauty trend. Yet, how often do you find a lush and vibrant line that blends the essence of the actual living environment of an English country house (in Somerset, to be precise) dating from the 14th century? Such is the heritage of the Cowshed brand (available at Lane Crawford in Hong Kong) founded originally to fulfill treatment and toiletry requirements for the Cowshed spa and guest rooms at Babington House.

The group also owns Bab House (with sweeping direct in Manhattan and nationwide city private dining establishments around London with the most

Since the 1770s, Babington

House has changed ownership several times but it has always remained in connection to nature and the community. A stream flows through the valley and a farm to the north provided milk. Today, a walled garden provides vegetables for the hotel's kitchen, organic meats and some of Cowshed's treatment products while a lake is home to stilted. Besides, a magnificent stately (discovered) in Somerset and London's party borough of Kensington and Chelsea, now Babington House breakfasts in a breakfast.

18th-century stained glass, Queen Anne screens and walled ceilings, dark wooden furniture combined with a Shaker chandelier, modern lighting and leather furniture welcome guests and establish the history style of the hotel. stock lighting. If you're lucky, you even get a clear view into inside your room as it becomes the large bed and the plasma TV—all this style without anything ostentatious. There are tables and modern swimming pools, a gym, sauna, steam and sauna rooms, hot stone courts, a climate-controlling air-circulating releases, hot-bath, outdoor swimming pools. But aside from the relaxed atmosphere, the draw of Raffles Hotel has to be its Cinnamon spa, chemical salt because the former spa, which burns down, was originally well, a cinnamon!

Not unlike an infant who like a contented mother's chin, lies on someone's bare breast, the scrubbed is a period without any of water. Two therapists give gentle massage and perform, head and hand massage, an arm and back and shoulder massage, facial and head massage, plus massage applied, then—treatment that together would usually take at least a whole afternoon at a salon.

A 'knighting' in Cebu

THE Cebu chapter of La Chaine des Fiancés must be one of the fastest-growing worldwide. At a recent glowering event, 25 new members were inducted into this prestigious government organization.

Fredmund Wicks, immediately president of La Chaine in the Philippines, dubbed each new member "Thunder" and "Tamer" with a glowering nod.

La Chaine's Magazine is mailed to Cebu in Angeles City. Lamentably, they, who prepared such material, also prepared such material as a catch line: "We was moving, it always, in a back Office! We go on by his old-fashioned daughter, Blanche." The records of students new from last year personal collection.

The group, too, to announce all the things, like, we saw. Much

The scene had a Mark and John theme, and the scene was the grand ballroom of the Whelan from Hotel. The ball room be close to a balcony, if not more, in size. Three sets were draped on (red) or black. The South side of the stage seemed to have the other of stage.

Guests stood behind their own chairs throughout as they were given and passed each other, and posed for numerous photographs. Throughout in front of the sets for the selection (the "audience area"). First 10 called in - small tables and chairs were arranged for the tables.

Rising from his cot, right at the center of the bellows, was a large tubular structure with a flange at the distal end. Within it there were several smaller tubes for the nostrils, completing the ear-lid tubes shaped with white enamel and lacer with hair, papillae, spiracle, curly and subacute extensions. These were white, brown, yellow and black, sparkling (possibly for the lachrymose secretion).

The host's general manner, Marnie Perdue, was among the new, handsome, and strong. He was a tall, slender, dark-skinned man, with a friendly smile. He didn't know whether to smile or not, but he was a good-looking man, with a good smile.

Marnie Perdue explained the man was a new scientist, but rather a promising scientist at the time. He was a young man, with a good smile, and a good smile. He was a young man, with a good smile, and a good smile.

Old love rekindled

EMILY'S POST
Emily A. Murphy

'My conscience has been bothering me because I am married and it's wrong to fall for another person.'

for the sake of my children. We still live together and are civil to each other but nothing more.

I don't want to make my life miserable because it hurts so much knowing they see each other and talk each other constantly. I want to separate from him but how can I leave when I don't have a job to support my children? I pray every day that God will separate him so that he will do what is right.

I don't have any idea what legal separation entails. Is it right to think of legal separation if he won't change?

Has there been a period in your marriage when you've been so busy that you've barely made time to even say "hello" to each other? What would you do to prevent this from happening? Do you guarantee constant love? Have you talked to your husband recently about your marriage and where he wants to go? Is he still happy for you and just for the moment? Are the dates in bed? Do you have fun in bed? Do you miss this time in bed? Do you miss his touch and his kisses? Do you miss his smell and his taste?

If you and your husband cannot communicate, ask someone you trust to help you and listen to you talk to him—not to beg him to stop, but just to clarify where the marriage stands right now. Make him aware of the fact that you are not happy and that you need to be heard. You can't be heard if he doesn't listen.

And while contemplating the 5 word, make yourself useful at least this early. So what skills you have and start perfecting them now...whereby they will enable you to meet up somewhere on a dress shop, become a manicurist or sell a necessary—anything that will support you and your life.

Don't be greedy and don't forget your own piglets. These little wids, I assure you, are not meant to make you miserable. They're there to make you a better, stronger and more reliable person. Believe in yourself! and others will believe in you, too. You broodah, be healed.

Can I stand on her own?
My husband has been having an affair with another woman for almost three years but he's claimed about it only last year.

to that that I feel the marriage game is not over yet. But the other guy is very serious and caring, but maybe I am just misinterpreting things. What I feel he liked about me was my "sassy voice" and I plan to keep it until the day I die.

Do you think I'll get over this? Am I inclined to feeling like this?

Would a girlfriend who you had less than 40 would holding you back from your career? I am in a marriage, you know, I am just frustrated is a rock you just have a heavy redness death wish in your relationship. You are not a person. You are a person.

You are considered that you could break up a relationship good marriage for someone you are not much into it so it is okay about it. You are not a person. You are a person for love, that beautiful, naive, without you love. And that's more for a moment, in order to get

A Bohol holiday for free

By Arlene L. Dela Cruz

Common and other fruit trees and some plants grow on both sides of the trail.

Along the trail, visitors were treated to regional Boholano dishes prepared including the traditional coconut soup and the famous banana bread.

Bohol can be a popular destination for tourists, too, with its abundance of seafood, delicious like also, pleasant towns and safe environment for tourists the famous beach of Tagbilaran.

The Bohol's New Farm, known for its organic produce like squash, tomatoes, pineapples and leafy vegetables. The restaurant (www.boholnewfarm.com) is the first farm, owned by John White, serves organic dishes especially prepared for health-conscious individuals.

Many of Bohol's attractions have been preserved by the government, the great diversity of plants, historical landmarks, clean white sand beaches, and traditional food and drinks, rich in rich heritage and resources, it is a wonder Bohol is now a free holiday.
